VOL. 36.

EMPORIUM, PA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1901.

NO. 35.

Teacher's Institute.

The thirty-fifth annual Teachers Institute of Cameron county convened at the Court House, Emporium, Pa., at 1:30 p. m., Oct. 14, 1901.

Devotional exercises by Rev. O. S. Metzler.

Music, Institute.

"Primary Methods in Music" were ably discussed by Prof. O. H. Yetter. He said in part: "Teach pupils to begin with the first word." "Sing for pupils, not with them."

Dr. J. R. Flickinger presented the subject of Civil Government, and gave an interesting talk on citizenship in which he said: "Impress upon the boys and girls the principle of patriotism, and teach them to appreciate and uphold the liberty and rights that we enjoy to-day, which have only been secured by the struggles and bloodshed of our ancestors."

INTERMISSION.

Music, Institute.

Prof. Frank Green gave a pleasing address on "My Book and I." In order to prevent a child from reading bad literature, introduce good literature in its stead. Select few books and master them. Read a book that will emphasize the beauty and cheerfulness of the world."

Music, Institute.

TUESDAY, OCT. 15—9:00 A. M.

Devotion exercises, Prof. C. P. Bastian.

Music, Institute.

Instruction in music continued by Prof. O. H. Yetter. The development and change of the musical scale was thoroughly explained.

Civil Government continued by Dr. Flickinger. Local Government discussed. Its importance emphasized since it deals more closely with the average citizen than does the general government.

INTERMISSION.

Music, Institute.

"Grinding Principles in teaching Language" were discussed by Prof. Green in which he developed the following principles:

- 1.—Teach the child to love the English language.
 - 2.—Begin at the right place and develop in the right way.
 - 3.—Make the study of the language a science and an art.
 - 4.—Train to use the simplest language.
 - 5.—Lead to clear conception.
 - 6.—Do not waste time in quibbling.
- The Physical Child by Prof. East Barnes. By means of charts Prof. Barnes illustrated the physical development of the child showing that the tallest and heaviest child of a certain age has the best chance to get on in the world. It was also shown how we may give the child a better physical development.

TUESDAY, P. M. 1:30.

Music, Institute.

Civil Government continued by Dr. Flickinger with special stress upon the Local Government of Pennsylvania. Prof. Barnes followed with an interesting discussion on the growth of personality in which he showed that the twelfth year of the child's life is the most dangerous in all the development of personality and should be abridged by those in charge of our children.

Prof. Green continued the subject of literature with a talk on how to know an author. He said: We only need to know those things about an author that will better enable us to understand his productions.

WEDNESDAY, 9:00 A. M.

Devotional Exercises, Rev. Robertson. Prof. Yetter continued the subject of music by giving us the history of the same, the first evidences of which were about the Christian era.

The subject of Civil Government was continued by Dr. Flickinger in which, from personal experience he threw much light on the law-making department of our State.

Miss Laura Embree Woodward delighted her audience with a very interesting talk on "Some Rafter Tenants."

The work in Psychology continued by Dr. Barnes, subject "The Imagining Child."

WEDNESDAY, P. M.

Miss Woodward took her audience through "A Delightful Autumn Afternoon," pointing out many things of interest on the way.

In an able address to the Directors Dr. Flickinger said in part: No officer in the county has a higher duty than the school director. Education consists of the development of all of man's nature. The discretionary power of a director is almost unlimited. Lead your district for if we wait until public opinion pushes us forward we shall never make any progress. Do not make criticisms in presence of the school.

Vocal Solo, Miss Frank Huntley.

INTERMISSION.

The Child in Art. Prof. Barnes. The early drawings of the child were presented by means of charts. Everything we do has a crude beginning. Encourage the child.

Prof. Ira Smith entertained the audience with several readings and impersonations.

THURSDAY, 9:00 A. M.

Devotional Exercises, by Rev. Robertson.

Music, Institute.

Prof. Yetter continued his work in music by showing how to teach music in an ungraded school.

Miss Woodward continues her nature work with a day in the fields after butter flies.

INTERMISSION.

The Thinking Child by Prof. Barnes. All education has two sides the Positive and Negative. You must discourage the bad and encourage the good.

THURSDAY, P. M.

History of Music was continued by Prof. Yetter in which he began with the Harp and Flute, the earliest musical instruments and traced their development to the present.

Miss Woodward continued with a story of a Tree, beginning with the way different seeds are distributed and continued throughout its entire growth.

Childrens Lies; Prof. Barnes showed that from the earliest history of the world a skillful liar has been much respected but says that we are gradually reverting from this idea and are having more regard for the truth.

FRIDAY A. M.

Devotional exercises, Rev. Pugsley. Music, Institute.

Prof. Yetter closed his remarks on the subject of Music, and was followed by Prof. Bastian who gave an interesting address on "The Successful Teacher." He said in part:

- 1.—The result is the whole object in all kinds of work.
- 2.—The measure of the result gotten should be the test of a teacher's success.

The successful teacher is one that does not work merely for the compensation he derives but also for the good he can do the boys and girls.

In finding a birds nest Miss Woodward gave us many good points some of which are as follows: You should dress as nearly like the surroundings as possible. Go very quietly through the woods so that the birds may not hear you. Try to gain the confidence of the mother bird. Do not take the nest until the birds have left it. Never touch the eggs nor blow your breath on them, since in many cases the mother bird will abandon the nest.

With the report of committees closed a most successful Institute.

B. G. WOODWARD, Sec'y.

Be it resolved, by the teachers of Cameron county in the thirty-fifth annual institute assembled:

First.—That we are grateful to Supt. Miss Collins for the very able corps of instructors procured for the day sessions and the most carefully selected entertainments for the evenings.

Second.—That we as teachers, acknowledge the hearty cooperation of the people of Emporium as shown by their generous hospitality and patronage of the evening entertainments which make it possible to conduct an institute of such high character.

Third.—That we owe a debt of gratitude to the instructors for their very able and helpful talks and suggestions.

Fourth.—That it is the sense of this institute that educational meetings, which are so helpful to the teachers, should be held more frequently, and that all teachers make a special effort to attend every meeting.

Fifth.—That in view of the great importance of the work of the teacher, it is due the child that a most thorough preparation should be made on the part of every teacher.

Sixth.—That we recognize in Miss Mattie Collins a very able and efficient Superintendent and most heartily recommend her to the next triennial convention of county directors for re-election.

G. P. BASTIAN,
J. R. FICKINGER,
MARY HALL,
Committee.

The Star Course.

Holders of Course Tickets can reserve seats Friday, Nov. 1st, at 4 o'clock p. m., at Lloyd's book store. Seats will be assigned in the order applied for and no one person will be allowed to reserve more than six at a time. It will be the aim of the committee to meet the wishes of all patrons and it is hoped patience and consideration will prevail.

The Patricolo Grand Concert Company the opening number ranks deservedly high and a rich musical treat is promised.—The following is from the Montreal (Que.) Gazette.—Signor Patricolo's playing runs toward execution, as may be noted with two numbers from Gottschalk, and he demonstrated fully that he is master of that art. The Tremolo was rendered in particularly effective style; bringing down a ringing encore.

Zinc and Grinding Make Devote Lead and Zinc Paint wear twice as long as lead and oil mixed by hand.

Institute Notes.

The Institute.—The Institute was an unqualified success in the work done and in the results attained. The writer has attended similar gatherings in the largest counties in the state and in his opinion little Cameron suffers nothing in comparison with them.

The Superintendent.—In Miss Mattie M. Collins, Cameron county has an educational leader who is unexcelled. Abreast of the most advanced ideas and progressive methods in the cause of popular education she is laboring to bring our public schools to the highest possible standard of efficiency. In pursuance of these ends and at no slight expense the most eminent educators are secured as Institute Instructors and every possible advantage is afforded the teacher for intellectual stimulus and professional advancement.

The Instructors.—The Instructors were all men and women of wide experience and ripe scholarship, in fact specialists in their several departments of learning and the opportunity of hearing them was indeed exceptional.

The Music.—The music was a delightful feature. The fitness of Prof. Yetter to lead and instruct was apparent to all. A superb voice, pleasing personality combined with a thorough knowledge of the subject gave him a ground of vantage and the Institute promptly responded to his touch.

Maro.—The largest audience of the week, witnessed the Maro performance and was mystified with his marvelous feats of magic and charmed with the witchery and thrill of his wonderful music.

Director Day.—The attendance Directors Day was not as large as the occasion deserved and the instructions given merited. Those present evinced a sympathetic interest in the proceedings and doubtless profited by what they heard.

In general. The instructors from abroad were very favorably impressed with Emporium and its people, frequently expressing themselves to this effect.

The teachers were a well dressed and well behaved class, a credit to themselves, their friends and their profession.

The absence of more than one hundred town residents at the Pan-American militated against the evening attendance, nevertheless the audiences were of good size and were representative in character.

The vocal solos of Miss Frank Huntley were received with every manifestation of pleasure. Miss Wykoff accompanist was very acceptable in her difficult role.

Continues to Enlarge.

W. D. Johnson, the lumberman, who conducts extensive saw and shingle mills in this county and Elk, continues to increase his work in this county.

In order to facilitate his business at this place, he has rented three store rooms in Parsons' block and fitted the same for offices. The force of clerks have been moved from his store to the new offices, where the Press scribe found all hands busy under the direction of H. H. Cloyes, general manager. Three book-keepers are now employed, viz: Miss May McMahan, of Olean, Miss Marie Nangle and Philip Schweikart of Emporium. Mr. Frank Johnson of Grontonia is clerk at the store.

Quite a Delegation.

Last Saturday was a great day for Emporiumites at Buffalo and a large number of our people attended the Pan-American Exposition. Among the many visitors we noticed the following from this place: Hon. and Mrs. I. K. Hockley, Miss Deborah McCloskey, Miss Rose Blair, Miss Julia Blair, Miss Mame Cleary, Misses Belle and Jennie Cleary, Dr. A. W. Baker, H. S. Lloyd, Geo. Narby, Wm. Gross, A. F. Neison and father, Witalis Swanson, M. B. Judd, Geo. H. Crawford and many others whose names we did not learn.

People's Course, Nov. 4th.

St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch.—Mr. Butler, the violinist, was not a disappointment, and his numbers were greeted with the enthusiasm they deserved. Mr. Butler proved that he could make his instrument speak in sweet and tender accents as well as strong, and in the Laub-Wilhelm polonaise his distinguishing facility of execution shone pre-eminent.

Baptist Church Notes.

Preaching by the Pastor, morning and evening. Subject: "The work of the Devil." Evening, "When".

Bible school at the close of morning worship. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6 p. m. Prayer and Praise service Wednesday evening, 7:30 o'clock.

Gas on First Fork.

It is reported that the well being drilled on the Logue farm, First Fork, has struck a good flow of gas. Hope it may be a gusher.

Educational Reunions.

Local institutes will be held at the following places, on the following dates: Sinnamahoning, first Saturday, Dec. 1901; Driftwood, third Saturday, Jan. 1902; Sterling Run, second Saturday, Feb. 1902; Emporium, second Saturday, March, 1902.

Eye Specialist.

Prof. W. H. Budine, the well known Eye Specialist, will be at R. H. Hirsch's jewelry store, Emporium, Pa., Nov. 8th and 9th, where he will test and examine the eyes free. All work guaranteed. Remember Prof. Budine guarantees to cure all cases of headache caused by weak eyes or astigmatism. New lenses ground to fit old frames.

Quitting Party.

Saturday, Oct. 19, Mrs. W. E. Devling of Sterling Run, gave a quilting to a number of her friends. The ladies gathered at her home and finished two quilts, and all had a jolly good time.

Quiltings seem to be just the thing at present, as several more are proposed for the near future.

Change in Church Hours.

There has been changes made in the time of regular services at the church in Rich Valley. Beginning Sunday, October 20th, preaching will be at 4 p. m., instead of 7 p. m., and will immediately follow the session of Sabbath school, which is held at 3 p. m. Everyone is cordially invited to these services.

W. READETT, Pastor.

The Last Log Drive.

Lumbermen are of the opinion that log drives in the West Branch valley will end with the one next spring. There will be but little timber and few logs to be taken to the markets from the regions drained by the West Branch and what there may be will likely be transported by rail.

For next spring's drive there is only about 20,000,000 feet from West Keating and the entire drive will not have more than 40,000,000 feet.—Renovo News.

Society Notes.

Miss Mame Logan entertained a party of lady and gentlemen friends last Friday evening, in honor of her cousin, Mr. Logan McCloskey, of Wilkesburg, Pa.

Last Thursday afternoon Miss Mame Logan pleasantly entertained a number of lady friends in honor of her cousin, Miss Deborah McCloskey, of Wilkesburg, Pa., and Miss Laura A. Watters, of St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Charlotte C. Hill entertained yesterday afternoon from four until seven, about thirty of her little lady and gentlemen friends, in honor of her seventh anniversary. The afternoon was a happy and pleasant one for the little folks. Miss Charlotte was the recipient of many beautiful presents from her friends, and was as happy as the happiest.

Under Masonic Rites.

Promptly at 2 p. m., on Sunday, St. John's Commandery of Olean, headed by the Select Knights Band and escorted by Potter Commandery of Coudersport and the Blue Lodge of this borough, repaired to the late home of Edwin P. Dalrymple and from there to the Cemetery, where Eminent Commander Barly and Prelate Dr. Eddy of Olean pronounced the impressive rites of the order as the body of their dead brother and companion was laid at rest.

The members of the Masonic order followed by the mourners and friends then retired to the Presbyterian church where Rev. Arney preached a short but impressive sermon.

The floral offerings were many and very beautiful. From the Blue Lodge a square and compass of roses and carnations; a beautiful crescent and pillow from his employees, and several handsome tributes from members of the family and near friends.

Edwin P. Dalrymple is gone; as the cold earth shuts from our sight all that is mortal, let us remember his kind and generous acts, of which there were many.—Port Allegany Argus.

Announcement.

Having bought the business of Bedard, the tailor, I wish to state to the public that I will continue to do first-class work. Thanking all my customers for their past generous patronage, and hoping to merit future favors,

I am yours truly,
J. L. FORTBET.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

WADDINGTON.

Wednesday morning, Oct. 23, 1901, Mrs. HARRIETT WADDINGTON, aged 43 years, wife of Thomas Waddington, died at the family residence on East Allegheny Avenue Extension, after an illness of several weeks. Hopes had been entertained for several days for her recovery and her death is a sad blow to her husband and large family of children. Deceased came to Emporium seventeen years ago, with her family, from England, and has been a faithful wife. Her death is indeed a terrible affliction to the husband and seven children—one a babe of only a few weeks. The funeral will be held from M. E. church to-morrow (Friday) at 2:00 p. m. Interment in Newton Cemetery.

MORRISSEY.

JAMES MORRISSEY, aged 75 years died at the family residence on West Fifth street this (Thursday) morning, of pneumonia. Deceased, who has always been in robust health and never sick a day in his life, was taken down about one week ago and his advanced age being against him his death resulted. Mr. Morrissey came to Emporium in 1864 and remained in the employ of the P. & E. R. R. as section foreman up to within a year ago, when he was placed on the retired list. He was a quiet, good citizen and universally respected by our people, young and old. By industry and good management he accumulated considerable property, in addition to raising a large family of ten children, to comfort the aged widow in her affliction.

The funeral will take place from St. Mark's church, Saturday at 9:30 a. m. We have been intimately acquainted with the deceased since our boyhood and always respected him for his many excellent traits of character. Honesty was his guiding star and no man ever knew or heard of one mean or little transaction emanating from him. We firmly believed in his unsullied character and his upright, christian life, more valued than gold, is left as a living example for those behind.

People's Course, Nov. 4th.

Chicago Abendpost (translation)—Miss Rapp scored another victory at the Schiller Club before an audience of highly cultivated as well as talented musicians. Miss Rapp's pure soprano voice, so well trained, was greatly enjoyed. Two songs by Meyer Helmund and "The Last Rose of Summer" met with tremendous success, and the enthusiastic applause may well foretell that some day we shall hear again and again of this young lady whose talent and voice are well known throughout the city and praised by all.

Barn and Stock Burned.

About mid-night last night (Wednesday) Hon. G. W. Warner's barn at his North Creek farm was discovered to be on fire and had gained such a headway that little or none of the stock could be rescued from the flames. The barn which was one of the largest and best built in the county was filled with the season's crop, implements, etc. In addition to the loss of the crop, three valuable horses perished, his $500 grey team being lost. Loss $5,000; insurance on barn $1200. Mr. Warner fully believes the fire to be the work of an incendiary.

Water Suit Settled.

For several months past litigation has been pending between the citizens of Port Allegany and the Water Company, before the Attorney General, and the courts of Dauphin county, an effort being made to have the charter revoked. On Tuesday, at Harrisburg, the case was settled, Judge Morrison being agreed upon as Arbitrator to adjust the differences. B. W. Green, of this place, was prominently connected with the case as counsel for Water Company.

Yonker-Ebert.

The wedding of Miss Emma H. Yonker to Mr. Geo. W. Ebert, of Pittsburg, at the residence of the bride's parents last evening, was a very pleasant affair. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock, Rev. Robt. McCaslin, of Presbyterian church, officiating. After the ceremony and hearty congratulations an elegant repast was served. Mr. and Mrs. Ebert took Erie mail for Pittsburg their future home.

No Mud-Slinging.

It must be gratifying and pleasing to the several candidates to know that the campaign has been, thus far, free from mud-slinging. We hope it may close thus and the victors and defeated may be friends.

A woman in Illinois has been induced to seek a divorce from her husband so that a trolley line may cross her property. This is the first time an electric car has collided with matrimony.

The New York actress who threw up her job because it required her to be spanked on the stage may not have deserved it. There are lots of professionals, however, who would grace the part.

A Kansas paper says that a book should not be left out over night in the rain. Neither should it be run through the pulp mill nor used as a chopping block. Books will not stand such usage.

Hall Frampton, a negro who murdered his 17-year-old stepdaughter in Nebraska City, Neb., was indicted, tried, found guilty and sentenced to serve a life term in the penitentiary in less than 30 minutes. If we had more of that sort of justice in the courts there would be fewer lynchings.

The Boston Herald calls attention to the fact that few presidents of the United States have had middle names. The list is composed of John Quincy Adams, William Henry Harrison, James K. Polk, Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield and Chester A. Arthur, seven in all.

A gold miner has decided to the People's church in Chicago property worth a million dollars. Endowed churches are coming to be common institutions, and the question now to be settled is whether such wealthy concerns are really going to do as good work as those which depend upon the piety and liberality of their members for support.

Robert Hammond, of London, England, one of the most noted engineers of Great Britain, and who is now making a tour of American cities to inspect street railway properties, says that America is far ahead of England, both as to extent of systems and excellence of service. Americans who have been abroad know this, but it is rather surprising for an Englishman to admit it.

A Glasgow syndicate is completing a yacht model designed to save a mile on a 30-mile course as covered by the late challenger and defender. If the new design lends no aid to commerce or war it will not be wildly welcomed internationally. The world is not much concerned now about mere speed on the water without any other end in view. A machine to fly in the air, not on the sea, is the keen need of the hour.

It used to be in the good old days that when the frost was on the pumpkin and the corn was in the shock our people would settle down for a period of social and literary enjoyment. Now there are stocks, scandals, the beet-sugar conundrum, the divorce problem, the necessity of placating the servant girl and the final extinguishment of good temper by the fellow who is always calling the wrong telephone number.

The notion that a modern college course is essentially a rich boy's blessing is greatly shaken by figures just collated with regard to the students of Columbia university. It is as close as established as may be that fully 40 per cent. of the young men at that institution earn a portion of the money necessary to take them through. Ten per cent. of them earn half of their college money. About five per cent. earn the whole sum, including living expenses.

The Canadian government has a unique bargain sale on hand. It is placing on the market about 500 small islands in the St. Lawrence. They are distributed over the river between Kingston and Brockville, opposite the townships of Pittsburg, Leeds, Lansdowne, Escott, Young and Elizabethtown, and range from five square miles to two one-hundredths of an acre in extent. In the event of two or more applications for the same island the property will be sold to the highest bidder. Only two islands will be sold to the same applicant.

Warren D. Merwin, who has just finished a four years' sentence for forgery in Wethersfield prison, near Bridgeport, Conn., will return to prison as superintendent of the state shoe factory there, and will be paid a large salary. While Merwin was a prisoner he worked in the shoe factory and there invented and perfected a new machine for sewing the uppers to the soles of shoes, his machine increasing the capacity of the prison factory from 500 to 1,000 pairs of shoes a day. It is stated that the royalty on the machines will soon make Merwin wealthy.

ATTACKED BY BRYAN.

Hostility of Late Standard Bearer
 Toward the New Third Party.

William J. Bryan continues to maintain what the democratic reorganizers would consider a pernicious activity in politics. He has just come out against the allied party, which was recently organized in Kansas City. The third party, in so far as it draws from the democracy, he says, "will encourage the reorganizers by lessening the number of reformers in the party. The reorganizers, on the other hand, are boasting of their purpose to repudiate the democracy. The democrats who believe in democratic principles, standing between these two extremes, must make the democratic party effective in applying democratic principles to conditions as they arise."

All this shows that the late standard-bearer of the national democracy is a good deal more hostile to the gold element, which calls itself democratic, than he is toward the new party which has just been put in shape in Kansas City. The reorganizers, as he says, are "boasting of their purpose to repudiate the democracy." In his opinion these personages, who are working inside his party, are far greater foes of democracy than are the men who have risen in revolt against it, and who have repudiated it and adopted another name. The men who are attempting to put the democracy on a new base and to send to the rear the persons who have been fighting the democracy's battles in the recent campaigns are, as he views the situation, the real enemies of the democratic party.

Unquestionably Mr. Bryan is correct in this position. The democracy cannot win battles by attempting to come over to republican ground. It must have principles of its own, and maintain them courageously and persistently, if it wants to get the favor or the respect of the people. The republican party's record is well known to the country. It has gained victories upon it, and expects to gain more victories. Its position on all the great issues of the day has been outlined so often and so clearly that nobody in the United States is in any doubt as to its exact attitude on all the questions which are of any interest to the country. The democracy can accomplish nothing by trying to be as republican as the republican party. The democracy must get a policy of its own, and advocate it with courage and intelligence, if it ever expects to get the respect of any considerable element of the American people.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DEMOCRATIC DISCRETION.

The Ohio Are Not Doing
 Much Spouting in These Troubled Times.

The rejection by the Columbus democratic convention of the teachings of the late peerless leader apparently was not confined to rejection—protem, and according to the particular desire—of free silver heresies, but even the golden hue and wisdom of silence has taken possession of the party leaders, for silence is to take the part of stumping and still hunts of whooping up the boys. Or, it may be, Ohio democrats have taken counsel of the wisdom of their Kentucky brethren, who allowed the four senatorial candidates one whirl before the public and then made them step down and out, to the dismay of the faithful, the disgruntlement of the candidates and the disappointment of the republicans for whom the quadrilateral of candidates were making magnificent campaign material. In any event, and no matter what the cause, Chairman Daugherty has come to the conclusion that one day of speechmaking by democratic orators will be all the Buckeye state voters can stand, and the first meeting at Bucyrus will even be the last of all.

Verily, the glories of Lechabod have departed, the tail end has fallen from the democratic wagon, the breechin' has broke and the toboggan appears to be steeper than usual and somewhat more slippery than political humane societiesought to allow. The party that once did a thriving business under the leadership of Thurman and Ranney, Sunset Cox and Jim Campbell is preparing to turn down the lights, pull down the blinds and do its weeping in sorrow and deep seclusion. With Bryan gazing on Ohio in sadness—and a sharpened knife—with Kentucky's democratic quartette of tomahawks corralled and silenced, with the floodgates of democratic oratory in the Buckeye state turned into the tailrace and forever wasted, it is no wonder the old-time and the young-time democrats ask each other, sadly, where they are, and find no man to answer them.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

☞ No "good old times" were ever so crowded with prosperity as are the present times.—Indianapolis Journal.

☞ It is to be borne in mind that while the democrats have abused trusts they have done nothing to regulate them. The federal law and that on the New York statute book dealing with trusts are republican enactments. And the courts are sustaining them.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

☞ And now the republicans in control of the government in Washington are getting more money into the national treasury than is needed to pay expenses. That is an old republican dodge. Every time that party comes into power the country and the government become prosperous.—Cleveland Leader.

THE COMING ELECTIONS.

Probable Effect of the Presidential Change on the State Situations.

The assassination of Mr. McKinley and the accession of President Roosevelt will give a new interest to the state elections which are to take place a few weeks hence. Many states—Massachusetts, Maryland, Ohio, Iowa, Nebraska and others—will elect state officers of some sort this year, and the country when it adjusts itself to the events of the past few weeks will be anxious to know what effect, if any, recent occurrences will have on them. In the elections for governors or other state officers in 1881, just after Garfield's death, there was but little change from the preceding year, when he was elected, except that, as usual, the lead of the dominant party was a little shorter than in the earlier canvass. Forces were in operation, however—the wrangle in the republican party on account of the Conkling-Garfield feud and the desire of an element of the people for a "change"—which were destined to bring disaster to the republicans in the congressional canvass of 1882 and the presidential campaign of 1884.

In the present instance, of course, though there are some resemblances to the conditions of 1881, the contrasts are much more marked. The resemblances are the improvement in business in both years and the differences among the democrats on account of the finances, the silver element among the democracy being rather assertive 20 years ago, as it is now. There is a striking contrast in the conditions in the republican party. President Arthur gave the country a very creditable administration, but he was the object of some distrust at the outset in his service, and he belonged to a faction of the party which had been defeated in the national convention in the contest for the presidential nomination. Col. Roosevelt belongs to no faction, but was the choice of all the party for vice president. He has no friends to reward or enemies to punish. He enters office with his hands free and with the confidence of the masses of his party and of the people of the country, without regard to party lines. This is a contrast of decisive importance with the conditions which prevailed in 1881. Its effect will be reasonably sure to be registered in the elections a few weeks hence.

The present indications are that the recent events will help the republicans rather than harm them. In Mr. McKinley's own state the assassination is certain to diminish the democratic vote and enlarge that of the republicans. The intemperate abuse of the late president in the past four years will react now on the party responsible for it and increase the lead of the republican candidate. The republicans were tolerably sure to carry Ohio in any case this year, but the assassination will make their triumph overwhelming. The effect in Iowa will hardly be so great, though there will probably be some shrinkage in the democratic vote there and some expansion in the republican total. In Massachusetts the change, if any occurs, will be of no particular consequence, for Massachusetts has not been in the doubtful list in many years. The republican party at the present time is in a notably good condition for making an aggressive and enthusiastic canvass in every state which votes for anything this year. The chances are that it will carry Nebraska, as it did last year, although the incentive for republican effort in 1901 is far less than it was in 1900. Altogether, the prospects in the coming state elections are very favorable for the republican party.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE PRESIDENT STARTS WELL

New Head of the Nation Is Making Friends and Winning Widespread Approval.

Everybody agrees that President Roosevelt is making a good start, and "what everybody says must be so."

His demeanor has been unexceptionable from the very first. His brief but comprehensive announcement of his purpose to "continue absolutely and without variance the policy of President McKinley" was extremely wise and had an instantly reassuring effect upon the country. His insistent retention of the McKinley cabinet deepened and confirmed this good impression. And the reports from Washington that the president is "making friends" is not surprising. These senators and representatives who have called upon him come away with a conviction that the new president means to do his best for the whole country, and with a distinct liking for his cordial and earnest personality.

Of course the important men of his party have not yet been to Washington, nor have the great questions out of which a division in the party may grow yet come under discussion. It is difficult to think that Theodore Roosevelt has been so changed by the fact of becoming president that he will not have decided views of his own and seek to give them effect. His individuality it would seem, is too large and strong to be wholly merged in the shadow of his predecessor's fame.

As matters stand to-day, all that he has to do is to let well enough alone—to stick to the lines laid down, doing practically nothing distinctively his own—and he is bound to be nominated in 1904 and probably elected. But can he do it? It is simply a question of temperament and of self-restraint. Thus far he has certainly done very well.—N. Y. World (Dem.).

POLICE PLAN IT.

A National Bureau for Identification of Criminals.

Bill to Provide for Its Maintenance
 Will be Presented in Congress
 During the Coming Session—
 The Attorney General to Name Its Chief.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The following is the text of the bill for the creation of a national bureau of criminal identification, agreed upon by police chiefs yesterday, and which measure has been approved by the attorney general:

There shall be established and maintained at Washington, in connection with the department of justice of the United States, a bureau to be known as the national bureau of criminal identification, where shall be collected and filed, so far as may be practicable for record and report, plates, photographs, outline pictures, descriptions and measurements of all persons who have been or may be convicted and imprisoned for violating any of the military, naval, or criminal laws of the United States, including the laws in force in any of the territories or possessions of the United States, violations of which are punishable by the United States courts.

In said bureau shall also be collected and filed for record and report such plates, photographs, pictures, measurements and descriptions of persons who have been or may be convicted and imprisoned for crimes committed in any state or territory; provided, that the authorities of the several states and territories, or municipalities thereof, shall provide the same for such purposes; and provided, that all such plates, photographs, outlines, measurements and descriptions shall be transmitted to the superintendent of said national bureau of criminal identification, with a duly prepared certificate from an authorized officer of the law having in charge such convicted person or persons.

That all such plates, photographs, measurements, or descriptions which may be filed and recorded shall be placed in a systematic manner for ready comparison, and any information pertaining to the same, or any identification of a person upon description furnished by any official aforesaid, through comparison, or description already filed, shall be furnished on request to any United States, state or municipal official duly authorized to receive the same, who shall certify that the same is wanted in the interests of public justice, and not for any private or personal use.

The departments of the United States government shall forward for record and file in said bureau, any plates, photographs, outline pictures, descriptions or information pertaining to any person who has or may in any way design or indicate that he or she may contemplate the violation of any law known to have violated any military, naval or criminal law of the United States or the criminal law of any state.

That there shall be a director of said bureau, who shall be appointed by the attorney general, after he shall first have the indorsement of the directors of the National Association of Chiefs of Police of the United States, and who may be removed for cause at any time.

Said director shall be experienced in criminology, and have a general knowledge of professional criminals. Provision is then made for the support of the bureau, its total annual cost being placed at $24,000, including a salary of $3,000 per annum for its head.

The board of governors of the national bureau of identification, comprising leading police chiefs and the head of the Pinkerton detectives, adopted a recommendation to be urged on congress for legislation looking for the suppression of anarchy. The recommendation urges the necessity for congressional legislation defining anarchy and authorizing all police officers to arrest and prosecute all such offenders under that law.

"FIGHTING BOB" TALKS.

Rear Admiral Evans Gives Out a Discreet
 Interview Regarding the Schley Investigation.

Omaha, Oct. 18.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans passed through the city yesterday on his way to the Samoan islands, where he goes to investigate charges against naval officers. The admiral refused to discuss the merits of the Schley investigation, but gave the following to a local paper:

"What is your opinion of the Schley investigation?" he was asked. "Well, I might have a private opinion on that matter, but I do not care to express it publicly at present."

"Will Schley be exonerated?" "He has never been condemned in the eyes of the public, so far as my observation goes," he replied.

"Just what the outcome of the trial will be I cannot say, it is very gratifying to the public, however, to know that Admiral Dewey is on the board of investigation."

Admiral Evans said he was not in a position to say more, but added: "I will state this, however, that the battleship Texas is not receiving the notice it deserves in that investigation. That the Texas played a very important part in the sinking of Cervera's fleet there is no gainsaying. I was there and I ought to know."

Will Take Liberty Bell to Charleston.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Both branches of the city council passed a joint resolution yesterday authorizing the council's joint committee on the Charleston exposition to take the Liberty bell to the southern city, where it will be an attraction in the Philadelphia building. Four Philadelphia policemen will guard it day and night while it is at the exposition. The mayor of Waco, Tex., asked the Philadelphia authorities to allow the bell to be taken to that city, but the request was declined on account of possible injury to the bell in traveling so great a distance.

Mrs. Emma E. Felch, Treasurer Fond du Lac, Wis., Social Economic Club, Tells How She was Cured of Irregular and Painful Menstruation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for irregular and painful menstruation, and was entirely cured after using two bottles. I can truly say it is a boon to suffering women, and I would recommend all suffering from the above troubles to try a few bottles and be cured. Very thankfully yours, EMMA E. FELCH, Division St., Fond du Lac, Wis."

$5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

No other medicine for female ills in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

Neglected His Opportunities.

"So you were struck by lightning?" queried the Willoughby street lawyer of the cripple asking for alms.

"I was, sir."

"How did it happen?"

"I was walking along the Jamaica road when a storm came up and I got under a tree."

"A bolt struck the tree and hurt me as you see."

"And what have you ever done about it?"

"Why, nothing, sir. What could I do?"

"Do? Do? Why, you could have found out who the tree belonged to and scared him out of $50 by threatening a damage suit for $10,000. Here's a nickel for you, but you don't seem to be a man of much energy."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Wrenched Foot and Ankle Cured by St. Jacobs Oil.

Gentlemen: A short time ago I severely wrenched my foot and ankle. The injury was very painful, and the consequent inconvenience (being obliged to keep to business) was very trying. A friend recommended St. Jacobs Oil, and I took great pleasure in having you that one application was sufficient to effect a complete cure. To a busy man so simple and effective a remedy is invaluable, and I shall lose no opportunity of suggesting the use of St. Jacobs Oil. Yours truly, Henry J. Doirs, Manager The Cycles Co., London, England. St. Jacobs Oil is safe, sure and never failing. Conquers Pain.

PISTON ROD BROKE.

Stove a Hole in the Bottom of a Steamboat.

AND THE VESSEL SANK.

Steamer State of Michigan Goes Down in Lake Michigan.

THE CREW REACHED SHORE

An Attempt was Made by Men on a Tug to Tow the Disabled Boat into Port, but the Torrent Came Too Fast and the Steamer Sank.

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 19.—The Barry line steamer, State of Michigan, sank at 3 o'clock Friday morning about four miles northwest of White Lake harbor. The crew all reached the shore safely. The boat is now lying in 60 feet of water in the beaten path of east coast steamers. The crew escaped in boats with the assistance of the White Lake live saving crew.

The Michigan left this port at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night, bound for Manistee, to ply in the salt trade between that port and Chicago. When off White Lake the piston rod of the engine broke and, according to the story of the captain, stove a hole through the bottom of the boat, through which the water poured with such force and quantity that the engine hands were driven out of the room. The alarm was quickly spread and men were sent ashore for assistance. The accident occurred at 11 o'clock. The life saving crew and a tug went to the steamer's assistance and an attempt was made to tow the rapidly filling boat into port, but the water came in so fast that before the boat had been towed a mile, she was abandoned to her fate and soon went down.

The State of Michigan had been in service on the great lakes since 1872, having been built that year at Manitowoc, and ran as the first Goodrich line steamer between Chicago and Muskegon. She outlived the gale in which the Alpena met her fate. Later she was owned by Steve Drummond, of Detroit, and ran between Detroit and Cleveland. She later passed into the hands of the People's Steamship Co., which operated her on Lake Huron. Capt. Miles Barry purchased her for $19,000 two years ago. She was valued at $30,000 and was insured for $20,000.

Capt. Barry said last night he would not attempt to raise her, as she is too far out and will be demolished by the heavy seas of this season of the year.

PLOT TO KILL WOMEN.

A Lurid and Sensational Story Comes from Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19.—The Free Press says: "A surprising story was told in Detroit yesterday by a prominent young society woman of Petoskey, Mich., who is visiting friends here, who does not wish to be quoted. She says that since the condemnation of Czerwinski, the wives of three of the most prominent citizens of that place have received anonymous letters, threatening them with assassination. The letters state that the recipient is one of 100 women throughout the United States selected to be killed in retaliation for the execution of the assassin of President McKinley. "Mrs. H. O. Rose, one of the women who has been threatened, is the wife of one of the wealthiest real estate men of that part of Michigan; a second is the wife of Attorney Wachell and the third is the wife of Judge Newberry.

"The matter has been put in the hands of the sheriff and is causing a great deal of excitement."

Treasure Boat Sinks.

Willenstadt, Island of Curacao, Oct. 19.—A fishing schooner which arrived here Friday from Aruba island, northwest of Curacao, brings the story that the Arends, a Venezuelan schooner bound from La Guayra for Maracaibo, carrying a sum of money from the government destined to pay the troops on the frontier, the amount being variously estimated at from $25,000 to $100,000, encountered heavy weather last Sunday night off Aruba island and foundered in deep water, the entire sum being lost. The crew reached the island in a boat.

For Free Hides.

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—An association to be known as "The Free Hide League of the United States," embracing the shoe, harness and leather interests of the country, was organized here Friday. The officers elected compose the executive committee of the league and to this body was referred the question of whether the organization shall direct its efforts to have the hide industry clause in the Dingley tariff law repealed by the next congress or to seek to gain its object by means of reciprocity.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 19.—It is stated that the imperial government is about to mount guns in the forts at Signal Hill, Esquimaux, which means that the little village at the naval station will have to be evacuated by civilians, as the concussion from the guns would make the town uninhabitable. The government appropriated the land some years ago and the residents have been expecting notice to quit. When equipped this will be the most formidable fort on the Pacific, being cut out of a solid mountain of granite, and the largest guns will be mounted there.

NEW YORK'S MAYORALTY FIGHT

Tammany's Candidate Talks in Tammany Hall—Mark Twain Gets into the Contest.

New York, Oct. 18.—The democratic mass meeting at Tammany hall last night brought together an immense number of people. They jammed themselves into the hall and packed the fourteenth street and adjacent thoroughfares until the 250 policemen detailed to the meeting had their hands full to prevent serious accidents from the crush.

The speech of Mr. Shepard, the candidate for mayor, was the first he had ever delivered in Tammany hall. He said in opening:

"It is well known to you, and it seems to be a chief part of the capital of my distinguished competitor, that I have from time to time, and more especially four years ago, been hostile to Tammany and criticized it without stint. I am not here to excuse or to recede from anything that I have said. If it were possible for me, as it is not, to make any such excuse I should lose the respect of the voters of Tammany, a genuine respect which will be of far more consequence to me and the success of my administration if I be chosen mayor, than any liking I may gain in this campaign. Whatever my political fortunes may be this fall, you shall have no occasion to withdraw from me the confidence you have shown in my integrity and steadfastness of purpose by reason of any abandonment—even the slightest—of the standard of public conduct and political behavior which I have set up in the past."

Saying he had been charged with making an implied promise, if elected, not to disintegrate Tammany, Mr. Shepard continued:

"I know very well that, if elected, I shall have no power to disintegrate Tammany. And I know that if I were to have the power it would be gross treason to the cause of good government that I should use it for so factional a purpose. I will not do it."

Samuel E. Clemens (Mark Twain) entered the local campaign last night by addressing an audience of invited guests at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, he having lately joined a local anti-Tammany organization known as the "Order of Acorns." Mr. Clemens used for his speech an article written by himself which is to appear in the November issue of the North American Review, but Col. Harvey, publisher of the Review, agreed that the article should first appear as an address.

The whole address was a comparison of Richard Croker to Warren Hastings, and the city of New York to India under Hastings' rule. He used the words spoken by Edmund Burke at the trial of Hastings, substituting Mr. Croker's name where that of Hastings occurred and New York City where India occurred.

NOT A WHEEL MOVES.

An Indiana Railroad Is Tied Up by Its Employees, Who Want to be Paid Their Wages.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 18.—The report that business had been resumed on the Chicago Southeastern Midland railway, after being tied up by workmen who refused to labor until given their back pay is untrue. General officers of the company in Muncie disclaim the story and the shops containing most of the rolling stock in Muncie are dark. No trains have been moved for 16 days. The men had a proposition to take the road, move the 600 loaded cars and keep the whole amount of charges, but at a meeting here the proposition was refused by the men deciding to keep the road tied up until the pay car comes, which is now four weeks overdue.

There is a rumor that the Crawfords, owners of the road, are now attempting to sell to the Vanderbilt system. The road runs from Muncie to Brazil, in the heart of the Indiana coal field territory, with the great factories of the gas belt on this end, and gas fast failing.

HE PRESSED A BUTTON.

A Non-Union Lineman Seizes Photographs of Men Who Assaulted Him.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Seven men attacked F. E. Farnum yesterday while he was repairing a telephone wire. Farnum claims he recognized them as striking linemen. Like other non-union men he carried a camera for the purpose of taking snap shots of any one found injuring the telephone company's property. Farnum pointed the camera at his assailants and pressed the button. This further enraged the men and they rushed at Farnum, who drew his revolver and fired a shot over their heads. At this moment two patrol wagons loaded with officers reached the scene, a riot call having been turned in by some spectator, and four of the men were arrested.

The linemen, numbering 250, went on strike a month ago, and it has been difficult to identify strikers found tampering with the wires or charged with violence, the telephone company equipped its non-union employees with cameras.

SCHLEY HAS AN INNING.

The Government Rests and the Defense Begins to Offer Testimony.

Washington, Oct. 15.—In the Schley court yesterday Judge Advocate Lemly concluded the presentation of testimony for the government and the first of Admiral Schley's witnesses was introduced. Capt. Cook, who commanded Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, during the Santiago campaign, and who acted, though unofficially, in the capacity of chief of staff for the commodore, was on the witness stand the greater part of the day.

He was followed by Lieut. Commander William F. Fullam, who was senior watch officer on the New Orleans during the Spanish war, and ex-Lieut. Joseph Beale, who as an officer on the Harvard translated the cipher dispatches between Commodore Schley and the navy department carried by that vessel. Among these dispatches was that sent by Schley on May 28, expressing regret at not being able to obey the orders of the department and explaining the reason why he could not do so.

The first witness for Admiral Schley was the Cuban pilot, Eduardo Nunez, who told Schley on May 26, 1898, that he did not believe the Spanish fleet was in the harbor at Santiago.

Capt. Cook's testimony was a review of the entire campaign. He said that at first it had been believed by both Sampson and Schley that the Spanish fleet was in the harbor at Cienfuegos, and that no information to the contrary had been conveyed to Commodore Schley until the arrival of Capt. McCalla on May 24; that it was Schley's expectation to meet the Spaniards in the open sea, and his constant care was to have coal enough for such emergency. He explained the Brooklyn loop in connection with a graphic account of the engagement of July 3. Asked for an opinion as to Admiral Schley's bearing as a commanding officer, he said: "I always regarded him as an enthusiastically brave and patriotic officer."

Washington, Oct. 16.—Only one new witness was heard in detail by the Schley court yesterday. This was Lieut. Commander Sears, who was Admiral Schley's flag lieutenant during the Spanish war. He gave a detailed account of the Cuban campaign, including the siege of Cienfuegos, the retrograde movement of the flying squadron in search of coal, the blockade of Santiago, the reconnaissance of the Santiago shore batteries and the bombardment of the Cristobal Colon May 31, and the battle of Santiago July 3, when Cervera's fleet was destroyed. His testimony was very favorable to Schley.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The officers of Admiral Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, occupied the attention of the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. The proceedings began with the recall of Capt. Cook and Lieut. Commander Sears, both of whom made additions to their former testimony, and they were followed by Commander Mason, who was the executive officer of the Brooklyn; Lieut. Edward McCauley, who was signal officer, and Lieut. Charles Webster, who had charge of the forward gun deck battery of the Brooklyn during the battle off Santiago. Capt. Cook's new testimony related to the uncoupling of the Brooklyn's engines and to the voyage of the flying squadron from Cienfuegos to Santiago, explaining the cause of the slow progress made on that occasion.

Commander Mason and McCauley and Webster all gave accounts of the engagement of July 3. When asked if Commodore Schley had said anything during the battle for the encouragement of the men, Lieut. McCauley replied that he several times had said "Give 'em hell, bullies." All these witnesses testified that the conduct of the commander when under fire was cool and courageous.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The presentation of Admiral Schley's side of the controversy was continued before the court of inquiry yesterday, eight witnesses being examined. Of these five were ensigns, and the entire eight had served on the Brooklyn with Schley. There has been some inquiry as to Schley's standing in the navy since he was placed on the retired list, but all question on this point has been settled by the department having assigned the admiral to "active duty" at the court of inquiry. This action was taken to prevent any question as to the effect the admiral's retirement would have on the action of the court.

Post Office Burglar Arrested.

Washington, Oct. 16.—A dispatch to the post office department announces the arrest of George J. Mundell, alias Wilson, for burglarizing the Albert City and other Iowa post offices. The arrest was made by Postoffice Inspectors Farrell and Holloway. Mundell is in jail at Sioux City in default of $2,000 bail. A full kit of burglars' tools and explosives was found on him. Advice from Chicago report that he is a confederate of John Conley, arrested in Chicago September 23.

A Desperate Encounter.

Welsh, W. Va., Oct. 18.—As the result of one of the worst fights in this city in years, two men are fatally wounded and one seriously. The shooting occurred in the Palace hotel cafe. The fatally injured are Robert Hufford, a prominent merchant, shot three times; Dr. C. R. McDaniel, one of the best known physicians in the county.

Sherman to Renew the Fight.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Representative Sherman, of New York, announces his intention to renew the fight for anti-ticket scalping and Pacific cable legislation at the coming session of congress. He will reintroduce measures on these subjects substantially identical with those he introduced in the last congress.

Death of Ariel Barney.

New York, Oct. 17.—A special to the Journal and Advertiser from Onset Bay, Mass., says that Ariel Barney, the well known theatrical manager, died there Wednesday.

THE SEIZURE OF MANCHURIA.

A Russian Diplomat Dickers with Li Hung Chang in an Effort to Legalize the Big Land Grab.

London, Oct. 17.—"The new Manchurian convention, which has been the subject of negotiation between Paul Lessar (Russian minister to China) and Li Hung Chang, is on the same lines as the convention which Russia withdrew April 5," says the Pekin correspondent of the Times, "but it is more cleverly worded so as to save China's face."

"In consequence of previous disclosures a jealous secrecy has been observed; but the important negotiations by which Russia seeks to legalize her occupation of Manchuria have been entrusted to Li Hung Chang, who can be better trusted to serve Russian interests than any other Chinese statesman."

"Prince Ching is indignant because he has been kept in ignorance, and both the Yang-tse viceroys have twice protested against the negotiations. The same powerful opposition that was employed before is again endeavoring to prevent the signature of the convention; but Russia's promise to restore the railway from Shan-Hai-Kwan to Nieu-Chwang is a powerful lever in the hands of M. Lessar."

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 17.—According to advices from Yokohama received here yesterday the autumn maneuvers of the Japanese army will take place on November 29 and on the following day there will be a grand review of 15,000 troops before the emperor.

The Japan Mail publishes a statement to the effect that Russian officers have been urging Korea to fortify the coasts of the peninsula and offered to secure the money for the purchase of the material needed.

The Tokio Asahi is authority for the statement that a pirate ship has left Formosa under command of Mr. Okamura, a former chief of the Japanese army, and a crew of ten Japanese, including one former officer of the navy and ex-gendarmes and sub-officers of the navy. There are also some Chinese on the vessel which the Asahi says will be thrown overboard as soon as the vessel gets to sea.

WITHOUT A LAWSUIT.

Contest Over the Will of Millionaire Rogers Is Ended—His Money Goes to an Art Museum.

New York, Oct. 17.—All litigation with regard to the will of Jacob S. Rogers has been settled. In commenting on this Robert De Forrest, counsel for the Metropolitan Museum of Art, said:

"The effect of this settlement will be to put the museum within a short time in possession of Mr. Rogers' residuary estate, the value of which is upwards of $5,000,000, and to enable it to promptly carry out his benevolent intentions, the execution of which might otherwise have been delayed for several years by protracted litigation."

"The amount paid in settlement was $250,000, about 5 per cent. of the amount involved and not much more than a year's normal income on this amount of property. While further litigation over his will was quite possible, the chief subject of settlement was the claim made against his estate that by making the museum his residuary legatee he had violated an agreement alleged to have been made between himself and his deceased brothers whose surviving children are his next of kin, whereby these brothers, in default of issue, were to make mutual wills and were to leave their property to the others, or to their issue. There is some reason to believe that an agreement of this character once existed, though it is certain that if it existed, Mr. Rogers did not suppose it to be operative at the time he made his will in favor of the museum."

THE NATION'S SCHOOLS.

An Official Report Shows an Enrollment of 17,000,000 Pupils.

Washington, Oct. 17.—About 21 per cent. of the total population of the United States attend public schools and 2 per cent. of the rest attend private schools, according to the annual report of the commissioner of education. The grand total in all schools, elementary, secondary and higher, public and private, for the year ended July 1, 1900, was 17,020,710 pupils, an increase of 282,348 over the previous year. Of this number the enrollment in public institutions supported by general and local taxes was 15,443,462.

Counting in special institutions, such as evening schools, Indian schools, schools connected with asylums, reform schools and other institutions more or less educational in their character, increases the total number by 560,000 pupils. The statistics, as interpreted by the commissioner, show a uniform consensus of public opinion throughout the nation in favor of providing secondary education at public cost. Public high schools have increased from 2,526 in 1890 to 6,005 in 1900.

A Very Fatal Explosion.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 17.—A terrific explosion, probably of gasoline, in the second floor kitchen of Nathaniel Ladd's restaurant yesterday brought almost immediate death to Miss Handy, whose apartments adjoined, and Mrs. Mary F. Carrigan, the second cook, and fatal burns to John Barry, a waiter. The explosion wrecked two floors and falling debris caused minor injuries to a number of people.

Shot Three Bank Burglars.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 17.—A loud explosion aroused the village of Howell, a few miles from here, early Wednesday and, turning out, the citizens discovered that four robbers had blown the bank safe and were in the act of plundering it. Instantly the bank was surrounded and the citizens opened fire, which was returned by the robbers as they fled. When the fusillade ended three robbers, badly wounded, were stretched out on the ground. The fourth had escaped. Marshal Sumpter was shot in the leg. The wounded robbers are in the hospital. They refuse to talk.

ITO NOW IN AMERICA.

Former Premier of Japan, on Health Trip, Will Travel Through the United States.

Marquis Ito, former premier of Japan, is now in the United States. He is traveling for the benefit of his health, which had been failing for some months. He will travel through the country and will possibly visit London before his return, three or four months hence.

It is now rather more than four years since the marquis passed through America en route to the jubilee celebration in London.

In personal appearance he has changed but little since then. Though

THE MARQUIS ITO.
(Japanese Statesman Who Is Now Visiting the United States.)

ailing he still possesses the alertness and spirit characteristic of his life. Accompanying him is a party of prominent Japanese, including Hon. K. Tsuzuki, advisory minister of the department of education.

When asked what he thought of Russian aggression in the far east, the marquis stated that he did not consider any steps in the direction now being taken by the czar were hostile to Japan. His country was not opposed to any of the present movements of Russia; in fact, he stated that the relationship between the two countries was now of the friendliest nature.

Just before leaving Japan the marquis said in a speech: "The affairs of the far east have become subjects of the closest attention on the part of European and American powers during the last few years, and there are indications that the far east will be brought into closer touch with foreign countries in future."

"For these reasons I deem it most necessary that Japanese should make exhaustive inquiries into the affairs of Europe and America by means of personal inspection. I hope that my trip abroad will help me in furthering the welfare of our country. Looking into the present state of Japan, political circles seem to be enjoying temporary tranquillity, as there is no important political question ahead requiring the immediate attention of the politicians. The policy of the government, it may be presumed, will not undergo any radical change to that pursued."

MONUMENT TO ROBBER.

Highwayman Honored with a Memorial in the Parish Church of Avening, England.

land. This church contains some fairly well preserved specimens of early British architecture, but its chief claim to distinction lies in the fact that it is probably the only church where a highwayman has been honored with a monument.

Lord John Chandos gained his barony and the grant of Sudley castle by his strenuous support of Queen Mary's claims to the throne. Afterwards, when that ill-advised queen was hailing her subjects to jail and to death as heretics, Lord Chandos, though opposed to the executions, had to act as the queen's instrument. His son, Henry Brydges, connived at the escape of a family marked for punishment, and, being recognized, he and his servants were forced to lead the life of outlaws.

At his death his admirers put up the monument to him in Avening church.

Gen. Corbin Reviews the Condition of the Army.

THE LOSSES FOR A YEAR.

From All Causes They Amount to 25,000 Men.

THE TRANSPORT SERVICE.

It Is Costing Too Much Money and a Cable Line Is Badly Needed, as the Price for Messages from Washington to Manila Is $2.38 Per Word.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The annual report of Maj. Gen. Corbin, adjutant general of the army, reviews the work, condition and needs of the military establishment.

Gen. Corbin submits a table to show that the army in the Philippines is to be reduced by expired enlistments at the rate of about 2,000 a month from now on until June, 1902. The question whether the regiments thus depleted in strength are to remain so, or to be recruited to their full roster, he says, is one requiring the very earliest consideration, for if the latter is contemplated it is already time to begin special recruiting.

The losses from all causes in the regular army and the volunteers from July 1, 1900, to June 30 last totaled 16,924 officers and men in the former, and 8,191 in the latter. The casualties to the troops in the Philippines since the date of the first arrival, June 30, 1898, to June 30 last, were 115 officers and 3,378 men killed, and 182 officers and 2,646 men wounded. Gen. Corbin dwells at some length on the subject of the volunteer army in the Philippines, and calls attention to the promptness with which these regiments were brought home and mustered out.

Gen. Corbin invites special attention to the remarks of Col. Mills, superintendent of the West Point military academy, upon the improved discipline and generally excellent condition of the cadet corps. It is safe to predict, says Gen. Corbin, that hazing of a brutal nature is a thing of the past at the academy.

He devotes special attention to the question of the instruction of the army. He believes that the system of training for the officers should begin with elementary technical instruction at each post, and terminate in the higher training which would be provided at a war college, the speedy organization of which he considers most desirable.

Gen. Corbin recommends that the old law requiring that each candidate from the ranks of a commission in the army be a "non-commissioned officer in good standing who has displayed an aptitude for command of men," be revised. While a great many excellent young men have come into the service as officers under the present law, which opens the way for commissions to enlisted men who have had two years' service, Gen. Corbin says there have been a number of others who have entered the army as officers in this way who are not up to the requirements of their rank.

Gen. Corbin's recent tour of the Philippines and his visit to Japan and eastern China bears fruit in some interesting suggestions. Gen. Corbin believes that the army transport service on the Pacific is costing the government considerable more than the use of commercial steamship lines would. He suggests that congress could offer inducements to United States shippers to install a line of steamers under charters that would permit them, in time of necessity, to serve as reserve army and navy transports.

An equally important need of the service, Corbin says, is a domestic cable from the Pacific coast to the Philippines. The present cable communication through Europe, Asia, China and Japan, he says, should be discontinued at the earliest possible date. The rates charged by the existing cable service are exorbitant, $2.38 per word being the regular tariff on messages between Washington and Manila.

He urges that more comfortable quarters for the troops in the Philippines be provided as soon as possible and that an appropriation be made for the erection of storehouses in and about Manila, where the government now pays $300,000 annually for the use of rented buildings. If these suggestions are adopted, Gen. Corbin says, the cost of maintaining the army in the Philippines will be scarcely more than if the troops were on home stations.

Alleged Robber Arrested.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Frank McLaughlin, a box maker, was arrested last night, charged with burglary and assault on two old women whose house, in the heart of the city, was entered last Tuesday by three men, who represented themselves as gas works employees, and brutally beat the women to make them reveal the location of their diamonds and money. The women identified McLaughlin.

Are to be Deported.

New York, Oct. 19.—An order was received Friday from Secretary Gage, of the treasury department, directing the arrest and deportation of 13 Hessian waiters who are alleged to have been brought here and put to work in the Plaza hotel in violation of the contract labor law. The men were found and taken to the prison at Ellis island, where they will remain until October 23, when they will be sent away on the steamship Laurentian. It is said that an application will be made in one of the federal courts for a writ of habeas corpus for the men.

Mr. Dooley, in discussing the prospects of Democracy, says: "No, sir, the Dimmyeratic party is not on speaking terms with itself. When ye see two men with white ties go into a street car and set in opposite corners, while one mutters 'Thraitor' and the other hisses 'Miscreant,' ye can bet they are two Dimmyeratic leaders trying to reunite the grand old party." Point It Out If You Can.

Independent and Democratic newspapers are quick to class President Roosevelt among Free-Traders because of his reciprocity views. But they forget to say that he qualified his reciprocity views in the following language: "We have got to remember that our first duty is to our own people. We must continue the policy that has been so brilliantly successful in the past, and so shape our economic system as to give advantage to the skill, energy and intelligence of our farmers, merchants, manufacturers and wage workers." Will any Free-Trader point out the abandonment of Tariff principles contained in the foregoing words uttered on Labor Day at Minneapolis?—Terre Haute (Ind.) "Tribune."

Humiliating to Democrats.

From the Franklin (Pa.) News.
Ex-Democratic State Chairman Garman arrived at his home in Wilkes-Barre from Philadelphia yesterday afternoon, and in an interview he said: "In my judgement Mr. Coray cannot be substituted for Mr. Palm on the Democratic ticket, and the court will be asked to determine whether my judgment is or is not correct. The alliance which it is proposed to bring about is humiliating to every true Democrat." Mr. Garman would not say whether he would personally conduct the legal proceedings that may be taken to restrain the Democratic State Central Committee from placing Mr. Coray's name on the ticket, but it is likely that he will. Mr. Garman is a self-respecting member of the opposition party, but there are thousands of others, who, like him, will refuse to swallow Wamakerism in a new guise.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimmett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. McDONALD, Man, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. For sale by L. Taggart.

THE CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RY.

Many people unacquainted with the geography of the West imagine that because the names "Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul" are used in the corporate title of the railway owning the Short Line between Chicago and Omaha, they must go via the cities of Milwaukee St. Paul to reach their destination—and if it be Omaha or west thereof. This is a mistaken idea. On a map the line running directly east and west would look like this:

Omaha—Chicago.
There is nothing more simple than that, and it is less than 500 miles between Chicago and Omaha. Two through trains daily in each direction with the best Sleeping Car and Dining Car Service, and all regular travelers know and appreciate the merits of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway's Short Line between the East and the West.

Last week's issue of the Austin Republican was a great credit to that establishment and we feel sure must be appreciated by the citizens of the sawdust city.

George A. Walker, our candidate for Associate Judge, is making an effort to call on the voters of the county, but owing to the serious illness of his wife he may be unable to call upon all. It is hoped our friends will appreciate his position and not allow his interests to be forgotten.

Walter Yothers, the popular Republican candidate for County Treasurer, is putting in busy days calling on the voters. It is very pleasing to his friends to know that his prospects of election are rosy and that the voters are giving him a cordial reception. Walter makes friends wherever he goes.

Young man! Start right. Vote to continue the prosperous policy of the late lamented President McKinley by voting with the party committed to and have fought gallantly to unfurl that banner—the Great Republican Party, and vote it straight, without a scratch. Be honest and refuse to sail under false colors. Be a man.

As election approaches it becomes more evident that the Republican candidates for Associate Judge and County Treasurer are several laps ahead and are daily gaining and growing more popular with the people. Vote the straight Republican ticket—State as well as county.

Established Business For Sale.

On account of the death of one of the firm the well-known hardware business of Walker, Howard & Company, at Emporium, Pa., is offered for sale, including stock and building or to suit purchaser. Apply to

WALKER, HOWARD & CO.,
Stf. Emporium, Pa.

Ground by Machinery.

White lead chalks off; zinc prevents it; ground together they wear twice as long as lead alone; and that is Devco. Zinc and grinding are necessary for paint.

For Sale.

The Emporium Opera House is for sale at a reasonable price for spot cash, or negotiable paper. The only play house in the county, with a seating capacity of 1,000, size of room 50x100; stage, 50x22, stage opening, 24x22, fully equipped. Natural gas light and fuel. Will be sold at once to close an estate. Apply to

J. W. CLARK, E.
Emporium Pa.

Why Grinding?

The finer the better for paint; no matter what paint; all paint; and the best is Devco lead and zinc ground together. Zinc and grinding both are required.

A Bit of Realism.

An instance of the way in which the acting of a play grows may be taken from Ellen Terry's playing in "Mme. Sans-Gene." In the play in question the washerwoman duchess is having a lesson from a professor of dancing. The business of the play requires her to be awkward in her attempts at dancing, and the actress is awkward, delightfully awkward. She has put on a long riding habit in order to become accustomed to manipulate her court train in the dance and is so much troubled with it that finally she tucks it over her arm while she is learning to take the steps. The train keeps slipping; off her arm and has to be perpetually replaced, and the episode is a cause of much boisterous amusement.

One night in a great English manufacturing city she was playing the part with even more than her usual verve. She was lost in the assumed character so thoroughly that it was real to her, and the ex-washerwoman, with her mild harassed and worried by the trying conditions of her artificial court life, instinctively returned to the habits of her youth. In a moment of abstraction, finding the fat coil of stuff across her arm, she instinctively began to wring it out. The response of the audience was electrical. Every woman—and man—who had ever seen a wash-tub recognized the sincerity of the action. This moment of creative instinct was recorded in the actress mind and has been repeated ever since.—Cosmopolitan

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railroad station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by L. Taggart.

LOVE IS NOT BLIND.

Love is not blind, but sees through all disguise.
 And that is why we hear from day to day
 Of odd engagements causing much surprise.
 And weddings passing strange in every way.
 "What can she see in him?" the critics say;
 Love is not blind, but sees through all disguise.
 'Tis those who cannot use his Roentgen ray
 At whom Love laughs and leaves them to surmise.
 I find in you what all true lovers prize;
 You find in me all I was meant to be;
 Love is not blind, but sees through all disguise.
 And finds the charm—compatibility.
 And so when comes the day that we are wed,
 We'll smile at those who think themselves
 Wiser than we, and live to prove the truth of what we've said—
 Love is not blind, but sees through all disguise.

"Mr. Ward has not been able to get a nurse yet, and—and—we have not begun to look around for—a girl—Carl's sudden illness."

"I'll come back and help if you want me to," said Barbara, quietly. All this time she had been holding Carl's hand. He clung to her with feverish strength.

"And we'll have good times in the kitchen. And will you make me another gingerbread man like Mr. Morton, same's the one we made before? You know, Barbara?"

"Yes, yes, little man, I will do anything for you. We'll have good times together again."

"And you'll stay always, won't you, Barbara, always?"

"I'm going to stay, dear. Don't talk any more now," Barbara said gently. And Carl seemed satisfied, dropping into a condition of stupor which the doctor who called an hour later regarded with grave attention.

While the doctor was attending to Carl and Mrs. Ward was anxiously standing by him, Barbara slipped down into the dining-room, and found matters in confusion as she had expected. The breakfast dishes were still on the table, the kitchen fire had gone out, and all the rooms downstairs were in disorder. She quickly set to work to restore order; and, when the doctor had gone and Mrs. Ward had come down, Barbara had cleaned up the dishes and the dining-room, and had begun to set the kitchen to rights.

Mrs. Ward stepped out into the kitchen; and, as Barbara was moving into the dining-room for something, she suddenly threw her arms about her, and cried: "You don't know what it means to me to have you back again. We have had three miserable days. Carl is a very sick child. I am all worn out!" She then sat down and cried nervously.

Barbara felt embarrassed at first in the role of comforter. But she was quick to see how dependent Mrs. Ward had become. It was, after all, as woman to woman that they were related now in their common anxiety for Carl. And Barbara tried to cheer the mother by every word of encouragement she could think of while she busied herself with the necessary details of the kitchen work.

In the afternoon she went over to her mother's and told her what her decision was. Mrs. Clark sadly consented, and did not make so strong an objection as Barbara had feared. So the little trunk was carried again to the old room, and Barbara realized that her career had received a new beginning in some sense, she hardly knew how. One thing she felt very strongly, however, and that was that under the stress of need at the Ward's she was doing exactly the right thing in going back to her life of service there. Whatever the days might have for her of opportunity in the future for large service in the greater problem, it was to her mind very clear that her immediate duty lay within the circle of this one family that needed her.

She realized this more and more strongly as the next few days brought to her and the family a new and sad experience. As Carl's condition grew worse, she spent more and more of her time with him. Mrs. Ward secured a good nurse, but Carl died in his delirium for Barbara, and she sat with him many hours of every day. She was with him when the end came which they had all come to know was inevitable. It will always be one of the comforting thoughts of Barbara's life that she won and held the love of this child. All that came to her long after. But, as this little life slowly breathed itself out in the early gray of that morning, with the weeping father and mother and the two boys as they gathered around the bed, she felt a tender sympathy for them all as if she, too, had been one of the members of the family. Carl had insisted to the very last on clinging to his mother and to Barbara. Each woman held a hand as the child's soul went out of the frail body to God who gave it.

Mr. Morton, who had been a frequent visitor at the house during the trouble that had come upon it, was sitting by Mr. Ward that morning. When the end finally came, he knelt down by Mr. Ward's side, and Barbara was conscious that the minister's strong, right hand was laid in compassion on the bereaved father's hand as he prayed for consolation.

"O our Father," he cried, and his voice brought a relief even in that moment of sharp sorrow to the family, "mercifully reveal to us the happiness of the soul Thou hast just caught up into Thy bosom. We know he is safe in Thy arms. Comfort us with the comfort which earth does not have to give; take us also into the embrace of a love which gave an only-begotten Son for a dying and mourning world. The God of comfort bless this household. In the name of Christ, Amen."

Two days later, after the funeral service, at which Mr. Morton was present as pastor and friend, Mrs. Ward broke down completely and went to bed, leaving the care of the house and the family upon Barbara. The girl bore up under the responsibility bravely. She was conscious of the fact that she was necessary to the comfort of a home. The bonds of her service rested lightly on her, because she knew she was of use in the kingdom of God.

The relation between Mrs. Ward and Barbara during those days of grief became very close and affectionate. Through all the older woman's nervous and even irritable illness Barbara nursed and attended her with admirable patience, giving her the best possible care and trying to relieve her of every possible anxiety as to the affairs of the house itself.

"You have been like a daughter to me, Barbara," Mrs. Ward said to her one day three weeks after Carl's death. "I do not know what would have become of us if you had not come back." Barbara was arranging her pillow; and, as she stooped down over her, Mrs. Ward put an arm about Barbara's neck, drew her down, and kissed her. When Barbara raised her head, the tears shone on her face.

"Service has been very sweet to me, Mrs. Ward, since I returned. I have liked to believe that I have been needed."

"You have been a wonderful comfort to us. You are like one of the family since Carl's leaving us. We shall never forget how he loved you."

"It will always be a very tender memory to me," Barbara replied, and the tears of the two women flowed together, tears that brought comfort to them and at the same time united their sympathy for each other.

That evening, when Mr. Ward came up after his supper with Lewis (for Alfred had gone back to college), Mrs. Ward said, after expressing her thanks that she was recovering strength rapidly: "Richard, we owe Barbara a great deal for all she has done for us in our trouble. Isn't there something we can do to show it?"

"We certainly feel grateful to her," Mr. Ward said, with thoughtful eagerness. "What do you think we can do?"

"There's that money Aunt Wallace left you in trust two years ago to educate Carl when he should be ready to enter college," Mrs. Ward's voice faltered. "By the terms of the trust the money can now be used for any benevolent or philanthropic purpose. I have heard Barbara mention a plan that might succeed if it were wisely carried out. She thinks that if a building were put up in Crawford and dedicated to the training of young women for domestic service, preparing them for competent cooks and housekeepers, that a great deal might be done to elevate the labor of the kitchen and bring intelligent American girls into it. What do you think?"

"I think it is highly probable. At any rate, anything is preferable to the condition of things we endured before Barbara came. Anything is worth trying that will by any possibility tend to help matters."

"How much is Aunt Wallace's legacy?"

"It amounts to about $1,500 now. That would not go far toward such a building as Barbara probably has in mind."

"No, but it would be a beginning, and I think I know where I could get more to go with it." Mrs. Ward was growing very interested, and Mr. Ward was obliged to caution her against excitement; so the matter was dropped there.

But in a few days Mrs. Ward brought up again in Barbara's presence.

"I think something could be done with a properly equipped building," Barbara said in answer to a question put by Mrs. Ward. They had discussed the matter several times before Mrs. Vane's invitation to Barbara to come to her evening gathering. Mrs. Ward had not yet hinted at any means for realizing such a project.

"How much do you suppose such a building would cost?" Mrs. Ward asked, noting Barbara's growing interest.

"O, I've no real idea. Almost any amount. It would cost a good deal to maintain it, also. The greatest difficulty would be to secure a proper person for superintendent."

"And then the next thing would be to get the girls to attend the house-keeping school."

"I think we could find plenty of girls."

"I'm not so sanguine as you are, Barbara," Mrs. Ward answered, slowly. "But Mr. Ward and I are willing to show our faith in such an attempt by given $2,000 towards the erection of such a building."

She explained to Barbara Aunt Wallace's legacy, and added that Mr. Ward had offered to put $500 more with it to make it $2,500.

"I think Mrs. Vane and some of the other ladies in our church and society will give something, so that we can begin with a pretty good building and have enough to equip and run it. Suppose you go over and see Mrs. Vane some day this week and have a talk with her about it."

"I will," said Barbara, tingling with eagerness. Something real and tangible seemed about to come to pass in her career. She grew excited as she thought of possibilities. A building of the kind she had dreamed of was not by any means an answer to the servant girl problem, but it was at least a real thing, and if the idea was properly worked out it might result in great things.

So she talked with herself as she sung at her work that afternoon and resolved to go over to Mrs. Vane's at once, and yet even in the midst of her growing excitement and her genuine interest in her career, Barbara was not altogether free from a depression that had its origin in the best feeling she had ever known. This feeling was her love for the young minister, Mr. Morton. Barbara no longer tried to conceal from herself that he had become a real part of her life. The trouble in the Ward household had all tended indirectly to increase her admiration for him. With the tenderest sympathy he had entered into the family's grief. It was only natural that in the weeks that followed Carl's death Mr. Morton should call frequently at the house where he had become such a familiar guest in college days. Scarcely a day passed when he did not drop in for a meal, or to spend part of an evening.

In one way and another Barbara met him a good deal. He was always the same earnest, gentlemanly, kindly speaker and listener. Gradually in little moments of conversation when Mrs. Ward was not able to come down, and Mr. Ward and Morton had lingered over a little talk on social questions after tea, Barbara had taken an unconscious part in the discussion. More than once she had with almost guilty haste gone out of the sitting-room after one of those important discussions in which she had revealed a part of her ambitions to the young minister and Mr. Ward; and in the midst of her work, as she finished some kitchen task, she reproached her heart for yielding to what seemed like a hopeless affection. But the girl's life was opening into full blossom under the spell of a power as old as the human race, as divine an instinct, as religious a hunger, as humanity ever knew. She was more than dimly conscious of all this, even in the midst of her self-reproaches.

But the consciousness of her position as a household servant and of his position as leader in the pulpit of the most influential church in Crawford was sharply painful. The gulf between them was not very deep personally. She was fully as well educated along lines of general culture. She was almost his equal in matters of knowledge and perception. It was the social distinction that separated them. And, as the days went by and she felt more and more the mental stimulus of his presence and the attractiveness of his manner towards her, she shrank from the thought of the suffering in the future which she was making for herself in even allowing his life to become a part of hers.

All this was in her mind as she went over to see Mrs. Vane that afternoon. The new plan proposed by Mrs. Ward and the gift of the money to make it practical appealed to her ambition, and she resolutely set herself to satisfy herself with the working out of her ambitions for social service, saying to herself, not bitterly, but sadly: "Barbara Clark, there is no place for love in the life you have chosen. Ambition is all you have any right to."

Ah, Barbara! Is that as far as you have gone in the school of life? There is nothing that can take love's place. For there is nothing greater in the kingdom of God. Ambition may keep you busy. It can never fill the place in your heart that God made to be filled.

She found Mrs. Vane as nearly disturbed as she had ever seen her. Generally the old lady was the personification of peace.

"What do you think?" was her greeting to Barbara the moment she entered the house. "Hilda has gone and got married! To a worthless young fellow after two months' acquaintance. The first I knew of it was this morning. It seems he persuaded her to marry him about a week ago. To-day she says she must leave me to go and live with him. I don't blame her for that, but neither of them is fit to be married. Hilda has no more idea of what it means to make home than—"

Just then the bell rang, and Mrs. Vane went to the door. Barbara heard her talking earnestly to some one in the hall, and the next moment she came in, followed by Mr. Morton.

"Miss Clark, Mr. Morton," said the old lady, who seemed to enjoy Barbara's sudden coloring. "Mr. Morton thought he was interrupting some private conference if he came in. I don't know what you want, my dear; but I know Mr. Morton is interested in your plans, and he may be able to help in some way."

"Yes," replied Mr. Morton with a hesitation that Barbara had never noticed before in him, "I am truly interested in the problem Miss Clark is trying to work out. I don't know that I am competent to give advice in the matter. There are some subjects that even a preacher just out of the seminary does not dare to face. I think the servant problem is one of them. I came in this afternoon, Mrs. Vane, to see if you could help me in the new social-settlement work we are planning for Marble Square church."

"You want money out of me, young man. I see it in your face," Mrs. Vane gave him one of her sharpest looks. "Go on, now! It's shameful for a fine-looking young fellow like you to come here and wheedle a poor old woman like me out of her hard-earned savings for your social experiments. Is that what you've come after, too?" she suddenly asked, wheezing around toward Barbara.

"Yes," replied Barbara, laughing with Mr. Morton at Mrs. Vane's pretended anger. "I have no social settlements to beg for, but I want you to help me put up a building for training servants."

Mrs. Vane looked from Barbara to Mr. Morton, and rubbed her nose vigorously.

"I believe you arranged this onslaught together. You conspired to combine your good looks and your blarney to rob me of necessities for old age."

"Indeed we did not, Mrs. Vane," replied Morton, with a seriousness that Barbara thought unnecessary, knowing Mrs. Vane's manner as she did. "I know nothing of Miss Clark's plan. She came in first; and, if she gets all your money for her work, I won't complain."

"Get all you can, my dear," said Mrs. Vane, grimly, turning to Barbara, who, with real enthusiasm, told the story of Mrs. Ward's proposed gift and the possibilities of such a building if rightly managed.

Mrs. Vane listened quietly until Barbara was through, and then said: "I'll give $10,000."

"Ten—ten—thou—" Barbara began, trembling.

"I might as well go; you've got it all, Miss Clark," said Morton, rising with mock gravity.

"Sit down, sir!" said Mrs. Vane, while the sharp eyes twinkled at Barbara's confusion. "I said $10,000. I don't think it's enough. I'll make it more after the building is up. You will need cooks and teachers and lots of help in every way. The thing will have to be endowed like a college. I see great possibilities in it. But I have never believed in scattering effort. What is the reason this building for the training of competent servants cannot be a part of the social settlement connected with the Marble Square church? It is right in line with the rest of the things you propose, isn't it, Mr. Morton?"

[To Be Continued.]

LAST STROKE OF MISERY.

The Climax of Misfortune Heaped Upon a Poor Heroine by an Author.

Lady Anne Barnard, whose life and letters have just been edited by W. W. Wilkins, was the author of the well-known Scotch ballad, "Auld Robin Gray." Her story of the composition of this ballad, as related to Sir Walter Scott, is worth retelling.

There was an ancient Scotch melody, she said, of which dad was passionately fond. —, who lived before your day, used to sing it to us at Balcarras. She did not object to its having improper words, although I did. I longed to sing old Sophy's air to different words and give to its plaintive tones some little history of virtuous distress in humble life, such as might suit it. While attempting to effect this in my closet, I called to my little sister, who was the only person near me:

"I have been writing a ballad, my dear. I am oppressing my heroine with many misfortunes. I have already sent her Jamie to sea, and broken her father's arm, and made her mother fall sick, and given her auld Robin Gray for a lover; but I wish to load her with a fifth sorrow within the four lines, poor thing! Help me to one."

My sister thought a moment, and then, the climax of misfortunes coming to her, called out:

"Steal the cow, Sister Annie!"

The cow was immediately "lifted" by me, and the song completed.

The Appeal to Experience.

Some of the inmates of a Yorkshire asylum were engaged in sawing wood, and an attendant thought that one old fellow, who appeared to be working as hard as anybody, had not much to show for his labor.

Approaching him, the attendant soon discovered the cause of this. The old man had turned his saw upside down, with the teeth in the air, and was working away with the back of the tool.

"Here, I say, J—," remarked the attendant, "what are you doing? You'll never cut the wood in that fashion. Turn the saw over!"

The old man paused and stared contemptuously at the attendant.

"Did ta iver try a saw this way?" he asked.

"Well, no," replied the attendant.

"Of course I haven't."

"Then hod thy noise, mon," was the instant rejoinder. "I've tried both ways, I hev, and"—impressively—"this is t' easiest."—London Spare Moments.

With an Eye to Business.

The old man was smoking his pipe on the front porch as the young man left the house.

"Things have changed since I was a lad," suggested the old man.

"How so?" demanded the young man.

"In my day when we went courting we didn't burn one gas jet, let alone two."

"Possibly," suggested the young man pointedly, "if you had fallen heir to some gas trust stock about that time it would have made a difference."

Thereupon the old man went in the house and told his daughter that when it came to a question of getting a real good business man in the family she could have his consent at any time.—Chicago Post.

"What's the matter with Rod and Miss Culpepper?"

"They're mad, I believe. You know Rod is a hunting enthusiast, and he got in a dreamy mood the other night, and asked Miss Culpepper if she used smokeless powder."—Indianapolis Sun.

IBSEN'S WHISKERS.

An American Gentleman's Experience in Entertaining the Well-Known "Master."

One enthusiastic Ibsenite, while still rabid, will content himself in future with admiring the "master" through his works, writes Henry Dick, in New Lippincott. Officially called upon to reside in Norway for a season, he, after meeting the playwright on several occasions, invited him to pay him a visit. He found Ibsen a most difficult guest. He was extremely sensitive and sentimental and his feelings were constantly being hurt. The morning after his arrival the guest did not appear at breakfast. Instead a message arrived that he wished to see the eldest son of the house. As the eldest son was not present, the puzzled host went to see what the difficulty might be. It

MONGOOSE AND SNAKEBITE.

Blood of the Animal Contains an Antitoxin Which is Destructive to the Poison.

There is probably no casualty more appalling than snakebite, by reason of the usually fatal result which follows the injury when the snake is of a highly venomous species, says the London Chronicle. Even a minute quantity of the virus injected into the blood will prove death dealing within a very short period of time. Remedies for snakebite have hitherto been limited to attempts made to prevent the spread of the poison through the system and to the fortifying of the patient against collapse. But till within very recent times nothing in the way of antidote or specific cure for snakebite was known. True, there have been "snake stones"—still used in the east

MISS MAY PALMER.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew has announced that his marriage to Miss May Palmer will take place at Paris at a date not yet set. Miss Palmer is a daughter of Mrs. Henry Palmer, who was one of the three Herman sisters of New Orleans, famous for their beauty. Her family is an old one in New York, but owing to her having lived much abroad she is little known at home. She was educated abroad, speaks French, German and Italian fluently, and is a cultured musician. The portrait is from a photograph taken in London and reproduced in the New York Herald. The bride-to-be is 25 years of age.

seemed that Ibsen desired the eldest son to act as a barber, that being the custom of the country. His host explained that, in the first place, the eldest son was absent, and, in the second, that had he been present the operation would have been fraught with peril, for the eldest son was conspicuously unskilled. Ibsen was advised, therefore, to seek professional assistance. As there was nothing else to do, Ibsen, weeping, departed and had his upper lip attended to professionally.

LESSONS BY PHONOGRAPH.

A New Device in Teaching Correct Pronunciation in Foreign Tongues.

Teaching modern languages by means of the phonograph is a new device. It is employed by some of the many correspondence schools —which have been vaunted as specifics, but from an examination of specimens one finds them to be either pieces of ordinary mineral or bits of bone or pieces of plant roots. It is fairly safe to say that if any case of snakebite is said to be cured by the application of a "snake stone" the bite was not that of a poisonous species. Also it has been said that the immunity of the mongoose to the venom of the cobra is due to the animal eating some herb or other which counterbalanced the effect of the bite. Nobody, however, has ever been able to discover this herb, and it happens that a much more scientific explanation of the power of the mongoose to resist the virus of the serpent is forthcoming. That explanation rests on the fact that the blood of the animal contains a principle (or "antitoxin," as it may be named) which is destructive to the poison of the snake, or which, at any rate, renders the body

GREAT ROCKING STONE OF TANDIL.

The largest rocking stone known is that of Tandil, near Buenos Ayres, in Argentina. It weighs about 700,000 pounds and has been rocking for centuries. Its pendulous movement, however, is so slow as to be imperceptible to the eye, but if a bottle be placed under it near the point of support the ponderous mass soon crushes it. Science maintains that the rocking is due to the unequal heating of the stone by the sun, causing unequal expansion of the different parts. This "piedra enlodada," as the natives call it, is one of the greatest curiosities of the Argentine republic.

that have sprung up all over the country in the last year or two.

At the headquarters of the school the teacher speaks the lesson into the funnel of the machine. These records are then mailed to the student, who may live a thousand miles away, together with a phonograph and several blank records.

In his own home the student sets the phonograph going and listens while it repeats as pure German, Italian or French as the teacher knows how to speak. Having learned the lesson he repeats it to the talking machine and sends the record back to the school, where the teacher criticizes it for his benefit.

Printed lessons are sent out also, but from the phonograph it is asserted the pupil learns correct pronunciation as he never could from books, and almost as well as he would from the instructor at first hand.

Flowing of Metals.

It is, perhaps, not generally known that one of the most important properties of metals employed in striking coins and medals, and stamping and shaping articles of jewelry, is that of flowing under pressure. Standard silver is remarkable for this property, which precisely resembles the flowing of a viscous fluid. The flow takes place when the metal is subjected to rolling, stamping or hammering, and the particles of the metal are thus carried into the sunken parts of the die without fracturing, and a perfect impression is produced.

Virginia's Educated Negroes.

Virginia has more educated negroes than any other state in the South in which disfranchisement for race reasons has been adopted or proposed.

CHEAP STRAW SHED.

Suitable for Cattle, Sheep or Hogs and the Storage of Farm Tools and Implements.

When stacking straw either in the field or barnyard, a good shed suitable for cattle, sheep or hogs, or even rough farm tools and implements, may be made with little work. Before threshing, secure six posts, each eight feet in length, and forked at one end if possible. At the place stack is to be built, set the posts about two feet deep in ground, in rows of three posts on each side; the rows eight or ten feet apart, and posts nine feet apart in row. Take two poles each 20 feet long and place one on each row of posts for crosspieces to hold top. Lay rails or poles six or eight inches apart on top of the crosspieces, and set ordinary fence rails, slanting, round frame, leaving one end open, as shown in the illustration. The rails should be close enough together to keep the straw from falling in or being pulled out. Build the stack on top of this frame, and a comfortable shelter will be provided. If desired, stalls may be made in the shed; and the size given—20 feet long and eight or ten feet wide—may be adapted to suit the wishes of the farmer or the amount of straw at his disposal.—J. G. Allshouse, in Ohio Farmer.

HOW CATTLE MULTIPLY.

There is No Business as Profitable as the Systematic Raising of Good Stock.

There is money in raising cattle and no one who has ever kept them and cared for them in a business way has ever made a statement to the contrary, says the Texas Stockman and Farmer. A young man cannot invest $50 in a safer or more certain business than to buy a good cow and take care of her progeny for a period of five or ten years. In ten years $50 at ten per cent. will double itself, but where can a young man loan $50 at such a rate of interest? Any way at the end of ten years he will only have $100 for his investment. If he will invest $50 in one good prolific cow and take care of her and her offspring for ten years, his $50 will not only double but create more than 1,000 per cent. of the first principle. As an example of what can be done in this line a case is given by the Hoxie Sentinel.

"Ten years ago," says the Sentinel, "John Sims presented his two sons, Willis and Robert, with a cow each and put them in Willis Johnson's herd to pasture, instructing Mr. Johnson to sell or trade the steer calves for heifers and also sell enough of the increase to pay the herd bills, which he has done. Mr. Sims and family returned home from Colorado, where they had been seven years, and the boys found that each had a nice little herd of cattle. One had rather bad luck, however, and only found 12, while the other found that he was the possessor of 28, making a total of 40 for the two cows, after deducting all loss and expenses."

If the young men in question had worked and cared for their respective stock and with the proceeds of matured animals added more breeding animals to their herds, it is plain that the above figures could easily have been doubled.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

The raisin product of California in 1900 was 70,000,000 pounds.

One of the doing kind of farmers is worth one dozen of the suggesting sort.

The total value of the peach crop in the United States is about $50,000,000 annually.

The estimated profit of wheat-growing in Argentina, at current prices, is $3.42 cents an acre.

Don't fail to read the best papers. For your own conclusions, then work them out, since it is the only sure way to make the farm pay.

The effort of the California fruit-growers to secure a six-day fruit-train service from Sacramento to Chicago, and a nine-day one to New York, has resulted successfully.

The first load of new wheat of the 1901 crop was marketed at Winfield, Kan., June 24. Weight, 62 pounds to the bushel. Kansas hard red winter wheat is now a formidable rival of the justly celebrated northwestern spring.—Farm and Home.

Sheep as Weed Destroyers.

It has been said that the sheep is a double-purpose animal, because it furnishes two profitable products—mutton and wool. We would add another value to the sheep; as an aid in the destruction of weeds on the farm he stands second only to the plow. Wherever a flock of sheep is kept weed growth is kept in check, provided, of course, the area is not out of proportion to the size of the flock. If you want a pasture trimmed up neatly and made to appear smooth and well-kept let a band of sheep in it for a few weeks and they will make a complete change of it.—National Rural.

DIGNITY OF FARMING.

In All the World There Is No Nobler or More Learned Calling Than That of Agriculture.

Within recent years it has come to be acknowledged that the vocation of the farmer is the most dignified of all the sciences and as an art it is excelled only by those of painting and architecture. In its highest forms it is the most learned of all professions. A knowledge of geology and chemistry and their relations to the soils lies at the very foundation of scientific agriculture. The problems that arise from the complex nature of the soils and their origin require the best thought of the best minds to solve. More educated young men should be farmers. Agriculture opens a wide field leading to influence and power, one, too, that is not filled to repletion. It holds forth the most splendid promises to young men of ambition. It is filled with liberalizing tendencies, a noble conservation and the most healthful and invigorating influences. The day is not far distant when agriculture will attract men of the largest capacity and the highest executive ability, and be regarded as the greatest of all the professions. Let anyone who is familiar with what agriculture was a hundred years ago compare its condition then with what it is to-day and he will search in vain for the same proportionate elevation and progress among its followers in any other branch of human industry. Many of those engaged in agriculture now are men of high elevation and broad reading. Many of them have extensive and valuable libraries and take numerous journals devoted to their business. Agriculture moves along in its own quiet, dignified, but irresistible way. It has no booms, so to speak, but it gathers strength with each decade and with every accession of knowledge, and will forever be the most important branch of human industry and the greatest necessity for the human race.

If the young men who are measuring tape and laces would surrender their work to the young girls who are seeking employment and turn their attention to the pursuits of agriculture there would be less misery and more contentment in the land; there would be more independence and less servility; more men and fewer creatures; more happy wives with comfortable homes, healthful children and cheerful tempers. A woman surrounded by all the active agencies of a well-kept farm and living in a beautiful country home "with foundations and flowers and sweet evergreens," has those environments that develop the sweetest graces and highest impulses of her nature and make her virtues shine resplendent above the world of frivolity and fashion. She becomes a true woman, the happiest of wives and the best of mothers. Such a home and such a wife realize our highest ideals of human happiness. It is a home where intelligence reigns and ennobles work and work crowns intelligence with honor and profit.

A young man who is in search of an easy place, with no responsibility, will never be a master and will never control others. He who selects a vocation because it is easy is already effeminate.—Southern Farm Magazine.

FENCE STEPLADDER.

A Convenient and Safe Arrangement for Crossing Barriers Like Barb Wire.

A wire fence always presents to those who understand the "power" of its barbs a formidable appearance, and, in truth, is an unpleasant affair to cross, either by climbing over or crawling under, or between the strands. Happily, however, the accompanying illustration shows a convenient and safe arrangement whereby such barriers may be crossed as often as desired, and that without any tension on the wires being lost by cutting a gateway.

FENCE STEPLADDER.

It is simply a double stepladder, and can be constructed by anyone at all handy with tools in a short time, the railing consisting of gas-pipe, the lower ends of which should be deeply inserted into the ground. Where a wire fence has to be crossed frequently in some out-of-the-way locality this device is of great value.—Frederick O. Sibley, in N. Y. Tribune.

Improving Marshy Land.

When a piece of marshy land has been drained it is often found that crops fail to thrive, although it seems to be very rich in nitrogen. The remedy is to add barnyard manure. The semi-aquatic vegetation which formerly occupied the land decays so slowly that cultivated crops cannot get nitrogen rapidly enough for their needs. When the manure is added it sets up a fermentation which converts the nitrogen bearing materials into a more soluble and hence available form.—Director C. E. Thorne, Ohio Experiment Station.
